

My style

Balance

- I think that life is about balance, and it is important to dedicate specific time to take care of all our responsibilities. Do the thing that we love, and the ones that we don't enjoy but is important to do.
- I like that my clothes, cases, notebooks, and other items communicate how I feel, what I like, and who I am.
- I love to learn about anything, especially if it is related to history, culture, music, films, and sports. I don't care if some people think that I learn useless things, to me each portion of the information is gold.
- The aesthetic of things is super important for me. It does not matter if it works well or tastes well, if it doesn't look good it is not good for me.

What do you value?

I value it when people can recognize a good film, song, painting, or artist. Even when arts can be subjective and controversial, I love it when people can explain and support with coherent arguments why they like something beyond saying that they like it.

- I value it when people take the time and resources to do something for me or someone else. Time is a valuable resource; if someone dedicates time to help another person, it is something we should definitely recognize.
- Sincerity, honesty, loyalty, and transparency help me build trust in other people and create better relationships with family, friends, classmates, and colleagues.
- My word is one of the most important things in my life, and if I say to someone that I'm going to do something I'll move earth and skies to do it.

When is the best time to approach you?

Almost any time is a good time to approach me. The only exceptions are when I'm playing guitar or playing video games. If I'm doing those activities, I can't guarantee that I'll pay your attention; but I do my best. I don't have any issues with stopping what I'm doing to help others.

How do you like people to communicate with you?

I like people talking to me face to face. I think that face-to-face communication is the most effective communication because involves gestural language that actually communicates more than words.

How do you make decisions?

I like to evaluate all the pros and cons beforehand and estimate the possibilities of success or failure. Also, I like to think about all the variables possible that could alter my choice. After that process, I ponder if it is possible to continue living with the consequences of the worst-case scenario, and if the answer is yes, I just move ahead with my decision even if I don't have full certainty if it is the right decision.

What do people misunderstand about me?

- Sometimes I appreciate the silence and I don't like people that can't live without talking to another person. If there is not anything important to say, sometimes is just better to stay quiet and enjoy it.
- If you move to another place and I don't call you or text you often, it is not because I don't care about you. I just suck when I must express my feeling through text messages or calls. My way to show appreciation for other people is by spending quality time doing something. If you are not close to me, unfortunately, I can't do that, but I'll be happy to go to visit you or make arrangements to meet when is possible.
- If I think differently than you that does not mean that I'm against you or I don't want to be our friend. I think that it is totally possible to have a different opinion on different things and be close friends.

How can people help you?

- I love learning by watching other people if you want to teach me something or advise me on something, tell me what you would do or how would you do it, and I'll give you all my attention.
- I think that I'm moldable like clay, so I you think that I can change something about my personality I am open to hearing it. If you can convince me you are right I'll follow your advice, if not, I still will hear you with attention but I'll probably forget it after a couple of hours

- It doesn't bother me that people correct me. correct me if you know that I'm wrong. I'll prefer to die like a fool than a Liar